

HOW THE DOCTORS HELPED WIN WAR

Work of the Health Section of the Army and Navy is Formally Reported

WERE ANXIOUS TO SERVE

Half of the Medical Men Have Been Discharged and Returned to Civil Life.

CHICAGO, June 11.—The first of the final reports of the health section of the army and navy is being made public today. It shows that the work of the health section was so successful that half of the medical men have been discharged and returned to civil life.

Doctor Martin, who recently returned from Washington where the big task was taken up last December, 1918, reported that the health section was so successful that half of the medical men have been discharged and returned to civil life. He said that the health section was so successful that half of the medical men have been discharged and returned to civil life.

Approximately 50 per cent of the doctors in military service have been discharged. This is a record in the history of the army and navy. The health section was so successful that half of the medical men have been discharged and returned to civil life.

After reviewing the numerous obstacles which he and his co-workers had to overcome, Doctor Martin pointed out that the health section was so successful that half of the medical men have been discharged and returned to civil life.

Doctor Martin said there was no difficulty in securing medical men for the response of the profession was spontaneous. The only reluctance was on the part of the doctors who were to be discharged. They were anxious to serve and to be discharged.

Only One Hindrance. "The only reluctance was on the part of the doctors who were to be discharged. They were anxious to serve and to be discharged."

However, six months before the end of the war a plan was devised which relieved this uncertainty. The volunteer medical service corps, under the presidency of Dr. William P. Davis of Philadelphia, was organized. Briefly, it consisted of selecting the 50,000 medical men not yet enrolled to agree to serve the government in any capacity with the stippled reservation, however, that they would be selected, as far as practicable, with reference to their preference for service.

In spite of the public propaganda based on the alleged opposition to men blindly signing up for service, 12,000 of these applications were signed and made the basis of a classification that would have been of considerable value for further mobilization. The applications were so made that it was possible to select almost instantly a group of men for a special line of work. In and through where large numbers of doctors were furnished within a day or two after requests were received from the public health service were cited by Doctor Martin.

Bamboozling the Allies

Unscrupulous Adventurer Pulling String at Versailles.

By WILLIAM LE QUEL

Germany is today struggling very hard to escape the clutches of the victors. The victors are the allies, and the allies are the victors.

The main object of this great war was to bring about a new world order. The victors are the allies, and the allies are the victors.

It is a political adventurer, a man of no fixed abode, who is pulling the strings at Versailles. He is a man of no fixed abode, who is pulling the strings at Versailles.

HUNGARY IN THROES OF DISSOLUTION

Everybody Worth While Trying to Get Out of Country Before Final Crash.

BUDAPEST, May 11, by mail.—What has been the last days of the "red" soviet republic here, are fraught with such terror, hunger, mental misery, uprooting of family ties, heart-breaking partings, flight, and the loss of all that was dear to the majority of Hungarians are praying that such days may never come again. They live like people caught in a burning house with the flames of anarchy and civil war.

One way out may possibly be provided by the Czech and Rumanian armies, who, though national enemies of the Hungarians, are now allied as co-belligerents. The atmosphere is charged with fear and alarm, worse than those felt on any battle front. A contagious fever like that which prevails when an army is in rout is spreading even to foreigners whose persons are comparatively safe from arrest owing to the wisdom of Bela Kun, the communist leader, and his followers to save themselves from the gallows when the grand collapse comes.

When fathers and sons flee the country to evade arrest or to join the counter-revolutionists, their wives and mothers whisper at the partings: "Let us hope we may meet in happier times."

Lucky to Be American. When the correspondent of the Associated Press had occasion to explain his nationality to the listener, whether red guard, peasant, or civilian, he remarked with envy: "What a fortunate man you are to be an American!"

He would invariably ask whether it would be possible to reach America and whether foreigners, former enemies, would be permitted to land on her shores. Peasants, who refuse to furnish food to Budapest or other cities because they are hostile to communism and what shoes and clothes more than paper money, of which they have plenty, gladly enough sell bread and supplies to the correspondent on the strength of his American nationality.

The city of Budapest, which a few weeks ago had a plentiful supply of eggs, people almost lived upon them and potatoes—now without eggs because of the obduracy of the peasants. A great many of the stores have been closed for lack of goods to sell or because they have been requisitioned by the soviet.

Going to Pieces. The most saddening impression the visitor receives is that of a country in dissolution, being stripped day by day, mercilessly and inexorably, of its riches, to benefit nobody. The relatively pleasant, orderly and beautiful life that existed in Hungary a few months ago, when its neighbor Austria was giving, is gone for many years to come.

If any one wants to be convinced of the futility of remaking the world in a single day with pet theories, he should now visit Hungary. The remark made by an American naval officer, it is estimated that half a million of Hungary's best citizens have been obliged to flee from their homes and wander across the frontiers in strange lands.

How a Packard Truck Can Show Economy for 8 Years—and Longer

It Takes Two Ordinary Trucks, Each With a Life of Four Years, to Make Comparisons With One Packard

THESE days of close figuring—no business man can afford to make his truck investment without considering what service he can expect from his trucks six or eight years hence—and what the operating cost is likely to be.

Uncertain trucking cost is the bane of the cost-accounting and the auditing departments of many an otherwise well-conducted business.

How can a merchant figure on five cents per dollar for delivery if at the end of two years his trucking costs go up to eight cents and then to ten?

How can a coal dealer sell coal at a fixed price and a fixed profit if his truck upkeep per ton refuses to stay fixed?

Your expert accountant is an important man in your business and he must be given reliable figures to work with.

Packard sells transportation at a figure which can be determined before the truck is bought.

The relation of this figure to every other element in the owner's manufacturing and selling costs can be ascertained and depended on.

It takes the balance, design and stamina of the Packard truck to deliver transportation at a definite reasonable unit of cost per mile.

Supposing an ordinary truck at a thousand or fifteen hundred dollars less than a Packard would last four years. And supposing the Packard lasted only eight.

It would take two such trucks to last as long as one Packard. And during the final two years of each ordinary truck, maintenance costs would increase out of all proportion—while service value would decrease in the same ratio.

Ten-year-old Packards are a common sight in America.

So by putting your transportation on the Packard 8-year basis you might easily save one-half the cost of using ordinary trucks.

At the same time, you would be certain of the cost per week, per month, per year—you would eliminate guessing from your transportation problem.

To obtain the cheapest truck transportation is simple enough.

Get in touch with the Freight Transportation Department of your Packard Branch or Packard Distributor. Obtain from them the actual figures it should cost you per mile.
